Far Reaching Results of Five Primary Elections

TWO POOR MEN WIN OVER THEIR RICH OPPONENTS

OKLAHOMA

DEMOCRATIC WET CANDIDATE FOR SENATE SUCCESSFUL IN OHIO

(By United Press)

Victories of two comparatively poor men over their rich opponents in Oklahoma and of a democratic wet candidate for senator in Ohio stood out today among five primary elections which laid battle lines for fall elections.

In Oklahoma Thomas Pryor Gore, a blind former senator, was selected by the democratic party to oppose W. E. Pine, republican, for the senate, and William Murray, self styled "commoner," was selected to oppose Ira A. Hill for the governorship. Gore and Murray, both comparatively poor men, won over wealthy opponents by large majorities, incomplete returns indicated. Regular democrats in Alabama nominated John H. Bankhead to oppose of John Edstrom, 77, pioneer resident, crat candidate, in the fall election. The race for the gubernatorial nomination was close with the lead shifting between B. M. Miller and W. C. Davis.

The prohibition issue entered into the Ohio primaries with odd results, the voters nominating a wet-dry democratic ticket to oppose an all-dry republican slate. Former Congressman Robert J. Bulkley, a wet, was chosen by the democrats to run with George W. White, a dry candidate for governor. They will be opposed by Sen. Roscoe C. McCulloch and Gov. Myers Y. Cooper, incumbents, both of whom were nominated without opposition in the republican primaries.

Senator Joseph T. Robinson met in Arkansas the first primary opposition he had faced in 12 years, but returns indicated he still was the choice of the democratic voters and would win the nomination by a majority of about 3 to 1. The gubernatorial race between Brooks Hays and Gov. Harvey Parnell was close with neither conceding victory.

TRI-STATE BOUGHT BY NORTHWESTERN BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 13.—Purchase of the Tri-State Telephone & Telegraph Co., by the Northwestern Bell Telephone Co., subject to the approval of the interstate commerce commission and the Minnesota railroad and warehouse commission, was announced today.

The announcement was made by G. W. Robinson, president of Tri-State. According to Robinson, Northwestern Bell plans to take over the Tri-State properties in St. Paul and St. Paul suburbs and a few toll lines in southern Minnesota. The remainder of the property will be sold back to the Gary interests of Kansas City, present majority stockholders in Tri-State.

The Northwestern system operates lines in Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska and the Dakotas. The purchase will bring the Minneapolis and St. Paul telephone lines under one system.

Control of the Tri-State system was acquired recently by the Kansas City interest. Previously the system was owned by St. Paul and Pittsburgh interests. The Gary interests are expected to repurchase a considerable portion of the present Tri-State system including lines in Minnesota and South Dakota.

Minnesota cities affected by the transfer include Stillwater, White Bear, Lindstrom, Forest Lake and North St. Paul.

Jack and 'New Mary' Pickford' Honeymooning

Del Monte, Calif., Aug. 13.—(U.P.)—Jack and "the new Mary Pickford" were honeymooning in northern California today.

The ceremony that transformed Miss Mary Mulhern of New York and Hollywood into Mrs. Jack Pickford III was performed yesterday in a quaint little seaside church.

MILK TRUCK AND SEDAN COLLIDE; 4 KILLED, 5 HURT

Cranberry Lake, N. J., Aug. 13.—(U.P.)—A milk truck and an automobile sedan collided in the morning mist at Fredon, near here, today, killing four persons and injuring five others, three of them probably fatally.

The dead are: Tony Amadeo, 28; his brother, Herman, 32; Napoleon De Carlo, and an unidentified man. All are believed to live in Passaic.

Those critically injured include: Patsy Shire, Angelo Long and Antonio Carubi, also believed to be from Passaic. Little hope is held for their recovery.

HOME COOKING AIDS FLIERS IN ENDURANCE FEAT

SALLIE JACKSON AND ELSIE O'BRIEN TELL ALL ABOUT IT

TRY TO MAKE THEIR HUSBANDS HAPPY WHILE THEY ARE ALOFT

Two young women, Sallie Jackson and Elsie O'Brien, wives of the St. Louis endurance fliers have spent 13 days in slightly more than a year cooking food that would please their husbands as they spent long hours in the air, away from home. Jackson and O'Brien claim that much of their ability to stand the strain of endurance flights, is due to the "home cooking" they get. In the following articles, the two wives explain how they try to make their husbands happy when aloft.

By MRS. FORREST O'BRIEN As Told to the United Press

Lambert-St. Louis Field, St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 13.—(U.P.)—As cook for the two endurance attempts of my husband and Dale Jackson, I feel that I, along with Mrs. Jackson, should come in for the record as the champion endurance cooks of the world.

Although the feeding task has been hard this year, it was much easier than last summer when the boys set the record of 420 hours. We knew just what to give them this year and as a result look for them to come down fast.

The main thing to remember when cooking for endurance fliers is to keep the diet well balanced. We believe we succeeded this year. We studied just what they needed—and gave it to them in large volumes.

Potatoes, meats of all kinds, eggs, spinach, in fact all kinds of vegetables, make up a great portion of their meals. There are of course a few trimmings. They both like their "trimmings." Well we hope they have just what they wanted.

I'd just like to say right here that I don't wash the dishes. It's a job I don't like. We hired a maid for that.

By MRS. DALE JACKSON As Told to the United Press

Lambert-St. Louis Field, St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 13.—(U.P.)—Both Mrs. O'Brien and myself found the task of cooking and keeping the boys in good spirits much easier this year than we did last summer when they set the record of 420 hours.

Experience was the reason. We knew what Dale and Forrest wanted in this flight. We didn't guess and I believe it aided greatly.

Much of my activity was confined to cheering them and supplying phonograph records and fresh roses. They have to have their roses every day.

If the boys ate all we sent up to them, they surely should be fat when they land. They really have eaten much more per day than they did last year.

Possession and Use of Intoxicating Liquors in Home for Family

Miami, Fla., Aug. 13.—(U.P.)—Possession and use of intoxicating liquors in the home for members of the family and guests does not constitute a violation of federal law and liquor for family use may even be manufactured in the home, although the latter is a technical law violation, Federal Judge Halstead L. Ritter ruled in United States district court here as he dismissed charges against Mrs. Mary Finn.

A search warrant cannot be obtained for a home without an affidavit that liquor is being sold; a home is free from search, and without a proper affidavit of sale search and arrest cannot result in conviction, Judge Ritter said. Mrs. Finn was charged with manufacturing and possessing intoxicating liquor.

Negro Pair Escapes from Posse After N. D. Bank Holdup, Captured and Confess Deed

ARE ARRAIGNED AT GRAND FORKS, SENTENCED SOON

CONFESS THEY STOLE NEW CAR, BROKE WINDOW, ENTERED BANK AT NIGHT

EARLY IN MORNING ATTACKED CASHIER AT MICHIGAN, N. D., STEALING $3,000

Grand Forks, N. D., Aug. 13.—(U.P.)—Captured after escaping from a posse in a running gun fight, Osa Sledge, Minneapolis, and George Taylor, Waukegan, Ill., negroes, were arraigned today for the $3,000 holdup of the Michigan, N. D., bank yesterday.

By late today the men, who were said by police to have confessed the robbery, probably will be on their way to the penitentiary to serve bank robbery sentences.

The pair were taken to Lakota, N. D., early today for arraignment. Because there is no jail at Lakota it was expected that they would be brought back to Grand Forks for sentence by Judge D. G. Swenson this afternoon.

In a complete confession given to Henry G. Owen, assistant states attorney of Grand Forks county, Sledge told of his activities since being paroled from Lonia state prison at Lonia, Mich., recently.

He said he went to Waukegan, Ill., where he met Taylor. A week ago the pair drove north through Minnesota looking for a suitable bank to hold up, Owen said.

Monday they stole a new car at Brockton, N. D., and Monday night went on to Michigan, N. D. They broke a window in the rear of the bank near midnight and crawled in to wait for officials to come down in the morning.

The first bank official entered at about 7 A. M., but they were asleep in the clothes closet when he came in. They waited about an hour and a half before Steve Hofer, cashier, came down.

When he came in they sprung from their hiding place and thrust an old revolver at him. The gun was not loaded, police officers said, nor was it capable of firing a shot.

They forced Hofer to open the vault and give them the cash, amounting to about $3,000, of which $500 was in silver. They thrust this into a satchel, bound Hofer loosely and thrust him in the vault. They closed the vault door but did not lock it.

The pair drove east from Michigan through Petersburg and Niagara and then turned north on highway No. 17 to Park river and Grafton. They then swung east to Drayton where they crossed the river into Minnesota and drove to Northland, 17 miles northeast of here.

Meanwhile sheriffs and police officers of the territory were aroused. Several reports of the negroes had come in and posses took the road. Sheriff John P. Bordewich of Marshall county, Minnesota, came upon the pair

Here and There Around the Northwest

(By United Press)

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 13.—Two University of Minnesota football stars made themselves heroes by forgetting the key to their apartment today. Paul Kirk, Grand Forks, N. D., and Cornelius Warsinske, Marshall, Wis., took a walk to figure out a way to get into their home. While walking, they saw a fire, gave the alarm and carried two half-overcome women to safety.

Red Wing, Minn., Aug. 13.—Reports that George "Bugs" Moran, Chicago racketeer, was trying to muscle in on the Red Wing brewery was denied today. Edward Dewitt, representing owners of the property, said no one was trying to buy the brewery.

Stillwater, Minn., Aug. 13.—The body of John Edstrom, 77, pioneer resident, was taken from Lily lake last night. Edstrom was thought to have fallen into the lake where he was fond of sitting. Born in Sweden, he came to Marine in 1879. He is survived by four sons, including Theodore Edstrom, 4738 Aldrich Avenue, Minneapolis.

Waupun, Wis., Aug. 13.—Clarence Teifer, wanted in St. Paul as the alleged fifth member of a holdup gang, was sentenced a year in Waupun penitentiary for an automobile theft. When his term is over he will be brought to St. Paul for trial on the holdup charges.

as they entered a store at Northland. Bordewich covered the men and started to handcuff Sledge. A storekeeper stood guard over the pair. Suddenly Sledge squirmed away from Bordewich. As he did so, Taylor picked up a hammer and hit the storekeeper on the head. Sledge snatched the rifle from the storekeeper and Bordewich's revolver and dashed for the door, firing into the air.

The pair leaped into their car and fled again.

The pursuit grew hotter. A posse of three men, A. E. Seger, Billy Watson and M. Skoien, all of Grand Forks, came on the bandits near the Red river. They forced their car off the road and the negroes took to the woods. Shots crashed through the thicket but the negroes were unhurt. In a few minutes they were surrounded and captured. In their flight through the brush they threw away the satchel in which they had put the silver and most of the currency, but about $450 in bank notes was found later on their persons.

Later sheriff's deputies found the satchel. Taken to Grand Forks, the negroes said at first that they knew nothing of the holdup. A pair of negroes at Michigan had hired them to drive the car, they said.

After five hours of questioning by Owen, the men broke down and signed a full confession, Owen said. Sledge had been paroled from a three to fifteen year term at the Michigan penitentiary, he admitted. Taylor was not believed to have a police record.

KERNS DENY THAT THEY HAD BEEN KIDNAPED

POLICE OF ST. LOUIS FEARED THEY HAD FALLEN IN WITH CONFIDENCE MEN

KERN CARRIED $70,000 WITH HIM, OSTENSIBLY FOR REAL ESTATE DEAL

St. Louis, Aug. 13.—(U.P.)—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kern, sought since early yesterday as the possible victims of kidnapers in Ohio, returned to their home today and denied they had been kidnaped.

Police had feared that confidence men forced the two off a Toledo bound train at Defiance, Ohio, seeking to obtain a $70,000 bank draft which Kern carried ostensibly for use in completing a real estate deal in Toledo.

Kern, elderly retired bakery owner of considerable wealth, refused to discuss where he had been, except to say "That's nobody's business. We're back home and were not kidnaped, and that's all I've got to say."

They arrived at their home at 1:45 A. M.

Return of the couple climaxed a 24-hours' search for them which started when Toledo police, who had been advised that Kern was carrying $70,000 with him, found the two had left their train at Defiance, Ohio, although they had bought tickets to Toledo.

Mrs. Kern proved scarcely as talkative as her husband, but did say that they had "been visiting relatives at a certain place in Ohio."

The mysterious real estate deal that Kern supposedly had arranged to complete with Toledo "business men" yesterday, he would not discuss. His banker here succeeded in dissuading him Monday from withdrawing $70,000 in cash he wanted "to complete the deal" and he took the $70,000 bank draft instead.

Police here were advised of the draft, and telegraphed Toledo authorities to watch the train, as detectives reportedly had learned a swindling gang knew of Kern's trip and planned to waylay him.

GREAT GRANDMOTHER SITS FOR 219 HOURS IN ST. LOUIS TREE

East St. Louis, Ill., Aug. 13.—(U.P.)—Mrs. Delena Richardson, 90-year-old great grandmother, passed her 219th hour of tree sitting at noon today.

Mrs. Richardson sits in a rocking chair on a platform in a tree to earn money to support herself and her husband, who is out of work. Her platform is over a dance floor, which is doing a rushing business.

The grandmother earned $3 yesterday.

FLYING THROUGH A STEADY RAIN THIS MORNING

AT 9:52:30 A. M. CST. PLANE ALOFT
ONE HOUR LONGER THAN
HUNTERS

HUNTERS' MARK OF 553 HOURS,
41 MINUTES, 30 SECONDS
SURPASSED

By PAUL H. KING
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Lambert St. Louis Field, St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 13.—Flying through a steady rain, Dale Jackson and Forrest O'Brien piloted their orange and yellow monoplane, Greater St. Louis, past a new world's endurance refueling flight record today.

The new record was established at 9:52:30 A. M. CST. when the plane had been aloft 554 hours, 41 minutes and 30 seconds, exactly one hour longer than the duration of the Hunter brothers' flight in Chicago last month.

A torrent of rain greeted the fliers as they passed the Hunter brothers' mark, but subsided into a heavy drizzle as the new record was made. It was the first real rain, however, that this drought distressed section has had in a month.

Each revolution of the six cylinder motor's propeller helped add to the time of the new record as the Greater St. Louis flew on with 1,000 hours in the air still the acknowledged goal of the pilots.

The little "orange and yellow bungalow," as Jackson and O'Brien call their home in the air, left the ground at 7:11 A. M. on July 21. Today's rain was the first to bother the fliers since they went aloft.

The record breakers regained the honor by smashing the Hunter brothers' mark. In their first endurance flight last summer they established a record of 420 hours that stood until the recent Chicago attempt.

The plane they are using is identical in construction and motor to the St. Louis Robin, which made the other flight.

O'Brien and Jackson dropped a green flare as the record was made. It signified—all is well.

An impromptu parade started on the field, men, women and children joined it despite the rain, which increased at 10 A. M. Bombs containing black powder were set off and sirens started screeching.

Through downtown St. Louis fire and factory whistles were blown.

Four minutes after breaking the record, the fliers—whose watches appeared to be slow—shot their monoplane down over the field, a few hundred feet above the crowd, then shot to the thousand feet level and circled. They opened the cabin door and waved.

Boys and girls in their teens were having the best time during the celebration. Two had drums, which they pounded in the parade. A small boy carried a large placard on which was scrawled "Again—Obie and Red—they did it."

Lt. James Doolittle, former army flier, entertained with spins and loops in his fast plane.

Mrs. O'Brien and Mrs. Jackson were soaked by the rain when they ran out on the field and waved to their husbands.

After climbing back to the 1,000 foot level, the endurance monoplane again zoomed down, speeding but 150 feet over the heads of the crowd three times in succession, and then sped up and resumed its circling course.

Faribault, Minn., Aug. 13.—Shrieking sirens and blasts from every steam whistle in Faribault broke loose today carrying word that Dale "Red" Jackson, former Faribault boy, was again champion endurance flier of the world.

A United Press flash brought word to the waiting hundreds who milled about the city's main street. A slight drizzle failed to dampen the crowd's enthusiasm.

As the news came, the crowd sent up a prolonged shout. Confetti was thrown from second story windows. Automobile horns honked loud and long.

Immediately the crowd formed a procession that wound through the city and out to neighboring communities. Two hundred cars filled with high school friends of "Red" were in the procession. Business houses entered floats.

Leading the celebrators was Henry Jackson and his wife, parents of the endurance flier. Throughout the long grind they had been wholly confident that "Red" would set a new record.

Tonight all Faribault will gather for a mass celebration and testimonial for her most famed son.

'Garret Ghost' Murder Testimony Goes in Records

Los Angeles, Aug. 13.—(U.P.)—The grand jury testimony of Otto Sanhuber in which the "garret ghost" confessed to the slaying, went into the records today at the trial of Mrs. Walburga Oesterreich, accused of the murder eight years ago of her husband, Fred, wealthy manufacturer.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 13.—(U.P.)—James E. Carver has been appointed general manager of Northern Pacific lines west of Paradise, Mont. H. E. Stevens, vice president announced today. Carver succeeds Colonel T. H. Lantry who died at Seattle Aug. 2.

LIBERAL TO ALL EXCEPT HIS OWN FAMILY IN END

Chicago, Aug. 13.—(U.P.)—Paddy Harmon, the man who promoted the $7,000,000 Chicago stadium and who annually played Santa Claus to more than 10,000 poor children, died with only $2.50 to his name, and friends are planning a benefit boxing show for his widow, Mrs. Mae Harmon and her 4-year-old daughter, it was revealed today.

One of the most hotly contested races was in Nebraska, where Senator George W. Norris was gradually forging ahead in his race against W. M. Stebbins for the republican nomination. Bryan, brother of the late William Jennings Bryan, was far ahead in his race for the democratic gubernatorial nomination and in the republican race Arthur Weaver, incumbent, was conceded a victory.

Later sheriff's deputies found the satchel. Taken to Grand Forks, the negroes said at first that they knew nothing of the holdup. A pair of negroes at Michigan had hired them to drive the car, they said.

After five hours of questioning by Owen, the men broke down and signed a full confession, Owen said.

Sledge had been paroled from a three to fifteen year term at the Michigan penitentiary, he admitted. Taylor was not believed to have a police record.

KERNS DENY THAT THEY HAD BEEN KIDNAPED

POLICE OF ST. LOUIS FEARED
THEY HAD FALLEN IN WITH CONFIDENCE MEN

KERN CARRIED $70,000 WITH HIM,
OSTENSIBLY FOR REAL ESTATE DEAL

St. Louis, Aug. 13.—(U.P.)—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kern, sought since early yesterday as the possible victims of kidnapers in Ohio, returned to their home today and denied they had been kidnaped.

Police had feared that confidence men forced the two off a Toledo bound train at Defiance, Ohio, seeking to obtain a $70,000 bank draft which Kern carried ostensibly for use in completing a real estate deal in Toledo.

Kern, elderly retired bakery owner of considerable wealth, refused to discuss where he had been, except to say "That's nobody's business. We're back home and were not kidnaped, and that's all I've got to say."

They arrived at their home at 1:45 A. M. Return of the couple climaxed a 24-hour search for them which started when Toledo police, who had been advised that Kern was carrying $70,000 with him, found the two had left their train at Defiance, Ohio, although they had bought tickets to Toledo.

Mrs. Kern proved scarcely as talkative as her husband, but did say that they had "been visiting relatives at a certain place in Ohio."

The mysterious real estate deal that Kern supposedly had arranged to complete with Toledo "business men" yesterday, he would not discuss. His banker here succeeded in dissuading him Monday from withdrawing $70,000 in cash he wanted "to complete the deal" and he took the $70,000 bank draft instead.

Police here were advised of the draft, and telegraphed Toledo authorities to watch the train, as detectives reportedly had learned a swindling gang knew of Kern's trip and planned to waylay him.

FLYING THROUGH A STEADY RAIN THIS MORNING

AT 9:52:30 A. M. CST. PLANE ALOFT
ONE HOUR LONGER THAN
HUNTERS

HUNTERS' MARK OF 553 HOURS,
41 MINUTES, 30 SECONDS
SURPASSED

By PAUL H. KING
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Lambert St. Louis Field, St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 13.—Flying through a steady rain, Dale Jackson and Forrest O'Brien piloted their orange and yellow monoplane, Greater St. Louis, past a new world's endurance refueling flight record today.

The new record was established at 9:52:30 A. M. CST. when the plane had been aloft 554 hours, 41 minutes and 30 seconds, exactly one hour longer than the duration of the Hunter brothers' flight in Chicago last month.

A torrent of rain greeted the fliers as they passed the Hunter brothers' mark, but subsided into a heavy drizzle as the new record was made. It was the first real rain, however, that this drought distressed section has had in a month.

Each revolution of the six cylinder motor's propeller helped add to the time of the new record as the Greater St. Louis flew on with 1,000 hours in the air still the acknowledged goal of the pilots.

The little "orange and yellow bungalow," as Jackson and O'Brien call their home in the air, left the ground at 7:11 A. M. on July 21. Today's rain was the first to bother the fliers since they went aloft.

The record breakers regained the honor by smashing the Hunter brothers' mark. In their first endurance flight last summer they established a record of 420 hours that stood until the recent Chicago attempt.

The plane they are using is identical in construction and motor to the St. Louis Robin, which made the other flight.

O'Brien and Jackson dropped a green flare as the record was made. It signified—all is well.

An impromptu parade started on the field, men, women and children joined it despite the rain, which increased at 10 A. M. Bombs containing black powder were set off and sirens started screeching.

Through downtown St. Louis fire and factory whistles were blown.

Four minutes after breaking the record, the fliers—whose watches appeared to be slow—shot their monoplane down over the field, a few hundred feet above the crowd, then shot to the thousand feet level and circled. They opened the cabin door and waved.

Boys and girls in their teens were having the best time during the celebration. Two had drums, which they pounded in the parade. A small boy carried a large placard on which was scrawled "Again—Obie and Red—they did it."

Lt. James Doolittle, former army flier, entertained with spins and loops in his fast plane.

Mrs. O'Brien and Mrs. Jackson were soaked by the rain when they ran out on the field and waved to their husbands.

After climbing back to the 1,000 foot level, the endurance monoplane again zoomed down, speeding but 150 feet over the heads of the crowd three times in succession, and then sped up and resumed its circling course.

Faribault, Minn., Aug. 13.—Shrieking sirens and blasts from every steam whistle in Faribault broke loose today carrying word that Dale "Red" Jackson, former Faribault boy, was again champion endurance flier of the world.

A United Press flash brought word to the waiting hundreds who milled about the city's main street. A slight drizzle failed to dampen the crowd's enthusiasm.

As the news came, the crowd sent up a prolonged shout. Confetti was thrown from second story windows. Automobile horns honked loud and long.

Immediately the crowd formed a procession that wound through the city and out to neighboring communities. Two hundred cars filled with high school friends of "Red" were in the procession. Business houses entered floats.

Leading the celebrators was Henry Jackson and his wife, parents of the endurance flier. Throughout the long grind they had been wholly confident that "Red" would set a new record.

Tonight all Faribault will gather for a mass celebration and testimonial for her most famed son.

LIBERAL TO ALL EXCEPT HIS OWN FAMILY IN END

Chicago, Aug. 13.—(U.P.)—Paddy Harmon, the man who promoted the $7,000,000 Chicago stadium and who annually played Santa Claus to more than 10,000 poor children, died with only $2.50 to his name, and friends are planning a benefit boxing show for his widow, Mrs. Mae Harmon and her 4-year-old daughter, it was revealed today.

Iconoclastic Boston

BOSTON has recently displayed an iconoclastic spirit which does not match up with its past. It occurred at a place of natural scenic beauty, a curious rock formation on the Horn Pond Parkway, Woburn, which attracted hundreds of automobiles each evening and resulted in a traffic jam. When automobile headlights were turned on the rock many persons said they observed the likeness of the Virgin and Child.

For years motorists have been attracted to the spot, causing many serious tieups of traffic because of congestion resulting. Boston authorities, thinking more of traffic problems than preserving natural beauty, ordered airdrills to work and these soon chipped away the likeness on the rocks. No one seems to have thought of enlarging the street to make it carry the additional traffic.

This is contrary to the general spirit shown by Boston which has preserved the curious street conformation as laid out by colonial pioneers; which has scrupulously preserved the many burial grounds of revolutionary heroes, many such cemeteries being in the shadow of huge skyscrapers; which has marked and preserved every historical trail from Paul Revere's to those of other heroes; which has kept intact old buildings where scenes of interest occurred in the Revolutionary war; which has preserved and reconditioned Old Ironsides.

Silent Bank Alarms

SPEAKING with a vigilante of Iowa who was spending several weeks at the lakes, we heard his experiences in fighting bank bandits.

He suggests that a silent burglar alarm be added to a bank's equipment. Such a button pressed on the floor or other convenient places would notify the police or sheriff's office and they would come to the relief without any warning given the bandits. Clanging bank gongs are often set off by mistake, so that citizens are not startled when they hear them.

The Whoopee Picnic

THE whoopee picnic for the children set for Saturday, August 16, at Lum park, is one of the best things ever inaugurated by the park board. It has secured general commendation from all adults and to say that the children are united in planning attendance is putting it mildly.

Rotary and Lions club members will assist the general committee in its various arrangements. It will take many persons to successfully handle a crowd of probably 2,000 youngsters.

TREE sitting may have its attractions, says the Little Falls Daily Transcript, but sitting in the lake is more to our liking these days.

Tropical Animals That

Once Lived in Britain

There are many mammals in our zoological gardens which we look upon as strange beasts and associate with tropical countries, or places quite as remote. But many of these great creatures were at one time roaming over the forests, mountains, and plains of Britain, for in those far-off days our country was joined to Europe, so that many animals in their treks found shelter here.

At one time the hippopotamus was fairly common in and on the borders of our rivers. This huge creature was to be found on most of the English and many of the Welsh rivers south of Lancashire and Durham. In that distant age, known as the Pleistocene epoch, before the glacial episodes, the hippopotamus traveled north as far as Yorkshire, and this animal was identical with the African species of the present day.

In the earlier Pliocene epoch a gigantic swine, as large as the tapir, reached England, and it may have lingered on to the time when man first took up his abode here, but with this exception the wild boar is the only wild pig that we know to have frequented this country. The latter remained in the great forests to the end of the Seventeenth century, the last recorded specimen being killed in Staffordshire in 1683.—London Tit-Bits.

Salt Important Part

in Rites of Sacrifice

The first accredited mention of salt appears in the first books of Moses, where it is referred to as an essential part in many of the sacrifices of the Jews. The most familiar Bible reference to salt is in Genesis ix, 26, in which Lot's wife was turned into a pillar of that valuable commodity—probably to the great enjoyment of the goats, sheep and cattle of that district.

The next most familiar Bible reference to salt is that in Matthew v, 13—"If the salt has lost his savor, where with shall it be salted?" Other references in the New Testament are Mark ix, 49-50, and Colossians iv, 6.

Homer, 800 years before Christ, speaks of salt in the Greek sacrificial rites; no sacrifice was complete without it. Herodotus, who was born in 484 B. C., says the Egyptians ate salted food, including raw fish that was first steeped in brine and then sun-dried. They must have been exactly like the Gloucester salt fish of today, or the Provincetown scull-joes. The Egyptians also ate raw duck and quail, salted in similar fashion.—Boston Globe.

Colonial Architecture

When speaking of Colonial buildings, none should be included of a date later than 1776. In New England most of the buildings of Colonial times were of wood and were built by carpenters who were also shipbuilders. These artisans developed a style that had a flavor of its own, and differed in many respects as to detail from that done in New York, where the settlers had a Dutch background, which was again different from the English background of New England. The Colonial style of Pennsylvania is characterized by sturdiness and solidity. Most of the buildings were of brick or stone and the detail was not so delicate as that of New England.

Buffalo Bill Preferred

Warren accompanied his parents on a visit to his grandmother's house. After dinner he wished to go outside and play with Shep, a big dog belonging to the family next door. However, when his grandmother asked whether he would like her to tell him some stories, he eagerly agreed.

"Now," said his grandmother, "do you want me to tell you about Little Red Riding Hood or Cinderella or the Gingerbread Man?"

Warren moved uneasily in his chair and then replied: "Well, grandma, if you don't know any stories about Buffalo Bill, I think I'd rather play with Shep."

Historic American Flag

The flag which floated over Fort McHenry in 1814 and inspired Francis Scott Key to write "The Star Spangled Banner," is in the National museum in Washington. It was preserved by Col. George Armistead, the commander of the fort during the bombardment, and was bequeathed to his daughter, Georgianna, and presented by her son, Eben Appleton, to the museum. The flag at present is about 28 by 34 feet in size, and in accordance with the regulation design of the United States flag during the War of 1812-14 has 15 stars and 15 stripes.

Bible and the Ballot Box

An amusing election incident is reported from Gablonz, in Czechoslovakia there is compulsory voting. The drawback is that it deprives citizens of the opportunity of expressing by abstention their indifference to the candidates. One voter, however, wrote across his paper: "Isalah xli, 24." The authorities consulted a Bible and read: "Behold, ye are of nothing, and your work of naught: an abomination is he that chooses you."

Discouraged

Martha Anne, a first grade pupil, came home from school a little tired and vexed. Things had not gone to suit her, for this is what she told her mother:

"Well, if I had my life to live over, I certainly wouldn't go to school."

LIGHTS OF NEW YORK

Avoids Women

When you hear the name, Firie MacDonald, you unconsciously think of the phrase, "photographer of men." MacDonald has been a photographer of men for 30 years, and not once in that time has he made a woman's portrait. Sixty thousand men have posed for him in that time.

Men who make pictures of women make enucleated pictures of men, says MacDonald, and he will have nothing of it. At Christmas time he wanted a portrait of his daughter, and he paid another photographer $180 to do the job.

Women, MacDonald claims, wear uniforms, while the men dress distinctively. "Take the Ritz ballroom," he goes on. "Out of 100 women, 95 wear gowns cut to the minute. Their hair is done the same, and they powder and paint by decree."

And the strange part of it is that MacDonald, thirty years and more ago, was paid for photographing men for the best photographs of women.

Then and Now

Hunter college, New York's college for girls, has advanced with the rest of the country since it was founded by Thomas Hunter in 1870. President Hunter ruled his wards with a stern hand, and one of his most strictly enforced rules was that only parents or guardians of the girls might meet them near the college. When, on a morning stroll down Park avenue, President Hunter met a girl in company with a gentleman, the girl invariably would say, "But, sir, he is my brother." President Hunter finally banished brothers. His wards couldn't eat candy, nor could they loiter on the sidewalk. And now let's look at them. Noontime comes, and they flock to drug stores for goody nut sundae; then they stand in knots at street corners and subway entrances, chatting with youths and defying the Hunter ghost.

Yale Feud

Every once in a while personal advertising columns in the New York newspapers carry an inquiry as to the whereabouts of anyone named Leavenworth. A man named Leavenworth has left a fund to provide a year at Yale for anyone having the same name. Only one Leavenworth a year may attend, and if there are several applicants, a competitive examination is held.

Helping the Poor

One of the older wills provided as follows: "I have 71 pair of trousers. They are to be sold to the poor, and the proceeds given to the poor. The garments shall not be meddled with, and only one pair shall be sold to any one person." The sale was held. The purchasers, when they took the pants home, found a $1,000 bill in each pair.

Society Chatter

The New Yorker has found this item of society chat in the London Daily Express: "Among Mrs. Fielden's guests were Sir Jock and Lady Broughton, Major and Mrs. Jack Coats and Sir Anthony Weldon; and for Sir Anthony at least the sojourn among the quiet vales of Yorkshire must have provided welcome recuperation. For he had just undergone a singularly trying domestic crisis, due to the inexperience of a housemaid newly imported from Ireland."

"The maid stepped inadvertently on a trapdoor communicating with a flat below, and was precipitated to the horror of everyone concerned, not only into the bathroom, but actually into the bath in which a marquis was engaged in the performance of his ablutions. Sir Anthony seemed, when I last saw him, as much distressed by this incident as anyone."

A Mistake

Architects, whom I admire chiefly because they have the knack of figuring out in advance just where the hot water pipe will go in every one of 200 apartments in a building, do make mistakes sometimes. I went backstage at one of the newer and better theaters the other night to speak solemn words with a comedian, and found him in a funny little coop of a dressing room. "Not much for a star, is it?" he said. "When they built the theater they didn't figure on dressing rooms, and had to put them in later."

Iconoclastic Boston

BOSTON has recently displayed an iconoclastic spirit which does not match up with its past. It occurred at a place of natural scenic beauty, a curious rock formation on the Horn Pond Parkway, Woburn, which attracted hundreds of automobiles each evening and resulted in a traffic jam. When automobile headlights were turned on the rock many persons said they observed the likeness of the Virgin and Child.

For years motorists have been attracted to the spot, causing many serious tieups of traffic because of congestion resulting. Boston authorities, thinking more of traffic problems than preserving natural beauty, ordered airdrills to work and these soon chipped away the likeness on the rocks. No one seems to have thought of enlarging the street to make it carry the additional traffic.

This is contrary to the general spirit shown by Boston which has preserved the curious street conformation as laid out by colonial pioneers; which has scrupulously preserved the many burial grounds of revolutionary heroes, many such cemeteries being in the shadow of huge skyscrapers; which has marked and preserved every historical trail from Paul Revere's to those of other heroes; which has kept intact old buildings where scenes of interest occurred in the Revolutionary war; which has preserved and reconsecrated Old Ironsides.

Silent Bank Alarms

SPEAKING with a vigilante of Iowa who was spending several weeks at the lakes, we heard his experiences in fighting bank bandits.

He suggests that a silent burglar alarm be added to a bank's equipment. Such a button pressed on the floor or other convenient places would notify the police or sheriff's office and they would come to the relief without any warning given the bandits. Clanging bank gongs are often set off by mistake, so that citizens are not startled when they hear them.

The Whoopie Picnic

THE whoopie picnic for the children set for Saturday, August 16, at Lum park, is one of the best things ever inaugurated by the park board. It has secured general commendation from all adults and to say that the children are united in planning attendance is putting it mildly.

Rotary and Lions club members will assist the general committee in its various arrangements. It will take many persons to successfully handle a crowd of probably 2,000 youngsters.

TREE sitting may have its attractions, says the Little Falls Daily Transcript, but sitting in the lake is more to our liking these days.

Helping the Poor

One of the older wills provided as follows: "I have 71 pair of trousers. They are to be sold to the poor, and the proceeds given to the poor. The garments shall not be meddled with, and only one pair shall be sold to any one person." The sale was held. The purchasers, when they took the pants home, found a $1,000 bill in each pair.

Society Chatter

The New Yorker has found this item of society chat in the London Daily Express: "Among Mrs. Fielden's guests were Sir Jock and Lady Broughton, Major and Mrs. Jack Coats and Sir Anthony Weldon; and for Sir Anthony at least the sojourn among the quiet valets of Yorkshire must have provided welcome recuperation. For he had just undergone a singularly trying domestic crisis, due to the inexperience of a housemaid newly imported from Ireland."

"The maid stopped inadvertently on a trapdoor communicating with a flat below, and was precipitated, to the horror of everyone concerned, not only into the bathroom, but actually into the bath in which a marquis was engaged in the performance of his ablutions. Sir Anthony seemed, when I last saw him, as much distressed by this incident as anyone."

A Mistake

Architects, whom I admire chiefly because they have the knack of figuring out in advance just where the hot water pipe will go in every one of 200 apartments in a building, do make mistakes sometimes. I went backstage at one of the newer and better theaters the other night to speak solemn words with a comedian, and found him in a funny little coop of a dressing room. "Not much for a star, is it?" he said. "When they built the theater they didn't figure on dressing rooms, and had to put them in later."

DRAWS OVER A MILLION DOLLARS IN THREE BOUTS

EXCESSIVE DEMANDS OF LEADING FIGHTERS HALTING THE GAME

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN HAS DROPPED NEGOTIATIONS FOR 3 OUTDOOR SHOWS

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, Aug. 13.—After drawing more than a million dollars in three outdoor bouts here this summer, the boxing industry in this region was virtually at a standstill today because of the excessive demands of the leading fighters.

Madison Square Garden has dropped negotiations for three outdoor shows—Sharkey-Campolo, Singer-Berg and Thompson-McLarnin—because the fighters are asking too much for their services.

Sharkey wants a guarantee of $100,000 to get into the ring again. Al Singer, newly-crowned lightweight champion, asks 40 per cent to meet Jack (Kid) Berg who demands 25 per cent. Jack Thompson, California negro, wants 40 per cent to meet Jimmy McLarnin, Vancouver, B. C., who asks 25 per cent for his services.

"We have dropped all negotiations for bouts in which the principals ask more than 50 per cent of the gate," Frank Bruen, vice president of Madison Square Garden, told the United Press today.

"With the fighters getting 50 per cent, the ball park collecting 12 1/2 per cent, another 12 1/2 per cent for preliminaries, there is left only 25 per cent for profit and incidentals. We are through with guarantees and will not pay any fighters more than the customary 50 per cent."

The three outdoor bouts staged by the Garden this summer have grossed

600 FANS NEEDED TO BRING FALLS HERE AUGUST 29

MEETING CALLED FOR TOMORROW EVENING TO TALK OVER PROSPECTS

IF GAME IS SCHEDULED, EVENT WILL BE PRIZE SPORT ATTRACTION HERE

If sufficient support can be gained, Brainerd will book the Little Falls baseball team for a game here on Sunday, August 24, but because of the guarantee asked by the Little Falls club it will be necessary for more than 600 fans to attend.

A meeting to talk over the prospects of bringing the powerful team to this city will be held tomorrow evening at the Elks hall. Everyone interested in the prospective game is requested to attend at 8 o'clock.

The sum of $250 will be necessary to bring the downriver team here. That figure covers only expenses of the team, Little Falls agreeing to make the trip for as light a consideration as possible.

The Falls squad is rated as among the most powerful semi-professional teams in the state and there is considerable discussion as to whether the team is superior to the Minneapolis Millers and the Saints of St. Paul. This will be settled on Aug. 29 when the Little Falls team meets the Minneapolis American Association squad at the Falls.

If the McDonald-Forman boys are brought here, Brainerd will strengthen its line-up with the addition of "Cy" Olson, former Brainerd twirler, who will do mound duty.

LEONARD MATTSON, HOST PROFESSIONAL, MADE 68 LAST YEAR ON PAR 72 COURSE

HARRY COOPER ONLY A SINGLE STROKE BEHIND WITH A SCORE OF 69

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 13.—(U.P.)—Johnny Dawson, Chicago golfer, today held the low score of the practice rounds for the St. Paul $10,000 Open Golf tournament as most of the headline stars arrived.

Dawson, who was not even entered in the tournament until he arrived yesterday, went around the Keller links where the tournament will be held starting Friday in 68 to tie the course record.

Leonard Mattson, host professional, made a 68 last year on the 72 par course.

Harry Cooper, Glen Ellyn, Ill., professional, was only a single stroke behind with 69. Horton Smith, New York professional who hailed from Joplin, Mo., was two under par for a 70 in his first circuit of the links. Tony Manero, Chicago, had a 71 in his round yesterday.

Three golfers were tied at par. They were Mattson, Charley Lacey, Pine Valley Country Club pro at Clementon, N. J., who flew here from the east so he could have three full days of golf on Keller course, and Ed Dudley, Wilmington, Del.

Walter Hagen, whose caddy has been here since Monday, Johnny Farrell, Wild Bill Mehlhorn and Tommy Armour expected to test their clubs over the course today.

PENNEYS TO PLAY LITTLE FALLS TEAM

CITY CHAMPS SLAUGHTER OFFERINGS OF "CANNONBALL" WERNER TO WIN

The J. C. Penney kittenball team had an easy time last night disposing of the Meschke Grocery team, 13-1, at Keoring field. "Cannonball" Werner was on the mound for Meschke's and the city league champs murdered his offerings. "Cannonball" was easy meat for his former mates while Swanson was holding Meschke's to a few scattered hits.

The Penney team will journey to Fort Ripley tomorrow evening where they will play the Power and Light team from Little Falls.

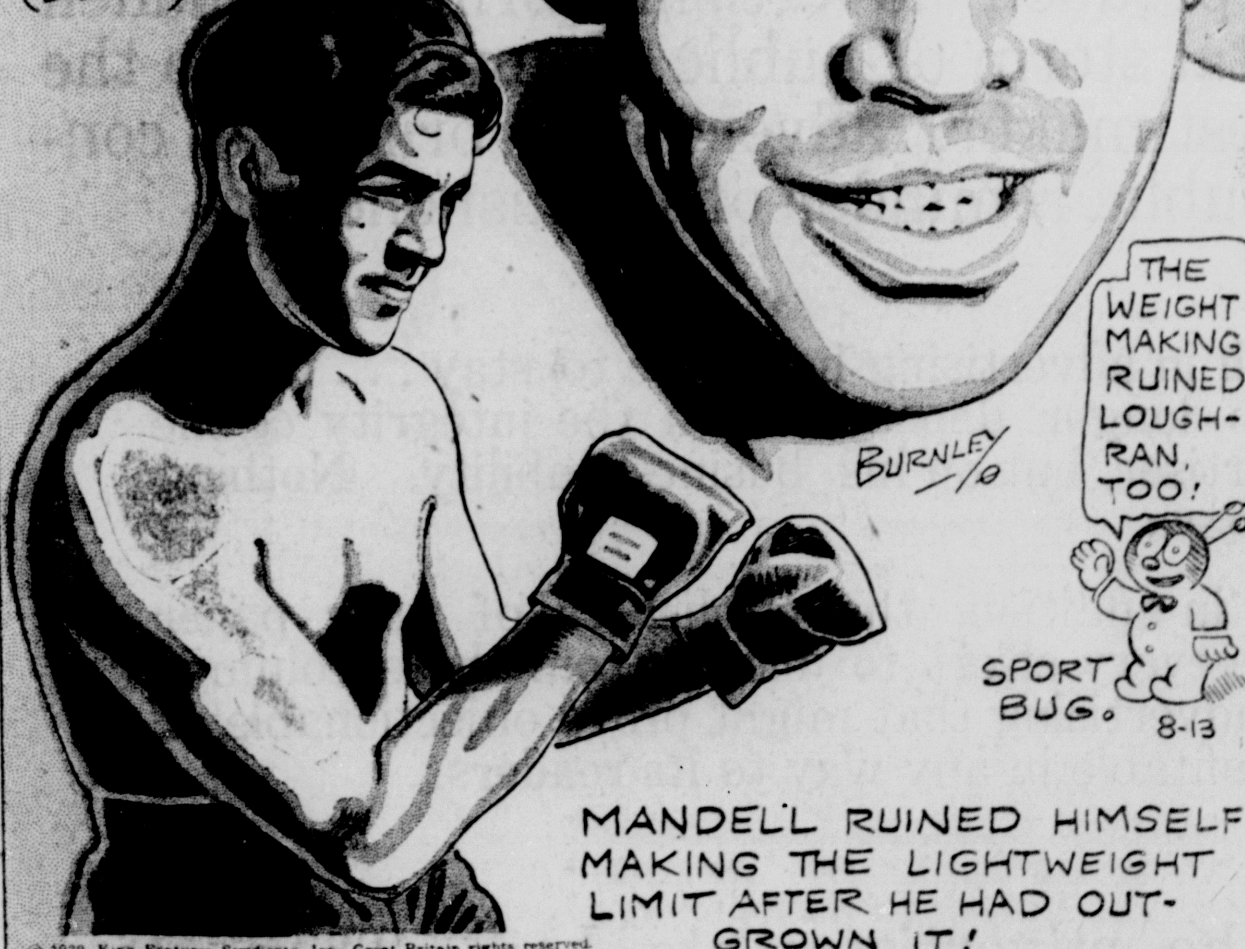

Meschke's have asked Pennys for another post-season game which will, in all probability, be played some time next week. The date will be announced later.

Weight Making Woes

By HARDIN BURNLEY

THAT WEIGHT-MAKING BUGABOO! MICKEY WALKER, → A NATURAL LIGHT-HEAVY, HE STILL HOLDS ON TO THE 160-LB. TITLE-- IF HE TRIES TO MAKE THAT WEIGHT AGAIN HE MAY GO TO PIECES LIKE SAMMY MANDELL-- (Below)

MANDELL RUINED HIMSELF MAKING THE LIGHTWEIGHT LIMIT AFTER HE HAD OUT-GROWN IT!

ONE of the oldest, meanest and smartest phases of professional boxing is the managerial "squeeze" in inducing his boxer's opponent to make a weight that weakens or entirely destroys opposition. The classic specimen of that was afforded twenty-four years ago when Billy Nolan insisted that Joe Gans make 133 pounds with his clothes on, in order to get a match with Battling Nelson. Joe won on a foul in the 42nd round, but was knocked out on two occasions afterwards, chiefly because he had to slug it out with the scales before battling Nolan's tough un. Gans died from T. B. within two years of meeting those Shylock weight demands. If ghosts really walk, "The Old Master's" shade should haunt the smart but smelly managers who still "win" for their boys by ruining their opponents through weight machinations. Of course, many boxers out-grow their class and must make weight in order to hold their titles in action. That sometimes ruins 'em. It was no fault of Al Singer that Sammy Mandell practically knocked himself out in making the lightweight limit, 135 pounds, recently. The latter had to work off, sweat and dry out more than 10 pounds in training. He was so weak he looked doped before the opening gong, was knocked down with Singer's first hard punch and flattened soon thereafter.

Some experts believe Mickey Walker is no longer a legitimate middleweight champ, because, they claim, he can't make 160 without woefully weakening himself. Of late, he's been boxing at from 163 to 167, and would appear to be a genuine light-heavy. Walker himself is sure he can make 160 and even much lighter poundage. Of course, he and his manager, Jack Kearns, will not surrender the middle crown because of Mickey's increasing poundage. And, in New York, at least, the ring authorities will not permit Walker to box Maxie Rosenbloom, the light-heavy king.

The weight spectre that haunts all ring champions (even the heavies must shear off extra fat) often dooms even masters like Mandell.

And boxing powers should note: Drastic weight-cutting cheats the fans, as those who were bilked at the Singer-Mandell farce will tell you quite emphatically.

ROBINS REACH IMPORTANT ERA IN PENNANT RACE

FIVE CONSECUTIVE DEFEATS BEHIND THEM, THREE GAMES WITH CUBS AHEAD

BROOKLYN IN CRUCIAL TEST OF ITS CHAMPIONSHIP METTLE

By DIXON STEWART
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Chicago, Aug. 13.—Brooklyn's Robins, enigma of the National League, have reached an important crossroads in their attempted march to the 1930 pennant.

With five consecutive defeats behind them and three games with the league-leading Chicago Cubs ahead, the Robins are facing the all-important test of their worth as championship contenders.

A victory over the Cubs today would enable Brooklyn to regain a tie for first place and probably would give them the confidence needed to carry them through to the pennant.

A defeat will put the Robins two games behind the Cubs—the largest margin by which they have been out of the lead since the opening month of the campaign—and in the opinion of baseball critics would put an end to Brooklyn's championship dreams.

On paper, the Robins do not rate as a first division ball club and their sustained success has been the surprise of the major league campaign. Ever since the Robins attained the lead, early in June, rival managers have been predicting that they would slump, but Manager Wilbert Robinson has kept his team at the top and until yesterday they had not lost more than four games in a row at any time during the season.

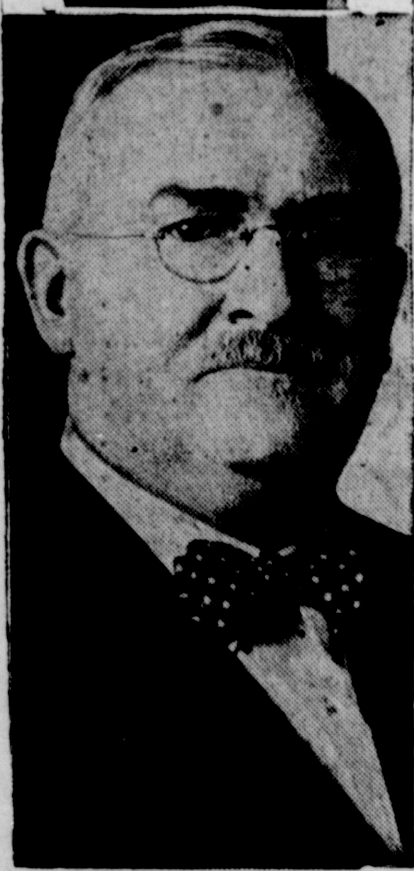

The Robins dropped the first contest of their crucial four-game series with the Cubs yesterday when Sheriff Fred Blake bested Dazzy Vance, 3 to 2, in an 11-inning pitching duel. Vance pitched great ball and deserved a victory, the Cubs making their only earned run of the game in the eleventh inning when Stephenson singled after singles by English and Cuyler and a walk to Hack Wilson loaded the bases.

Two errors by Jake Flowers gave the Cubs their first two runs in the opening inning and although the Robins pounded Blake for 12 hits he received sensational support and Brooklyn was unable to overcome the handicap.

It was the second time in as many days that the Robins threw away a game which they should have won. The strain of setting the pace apparently is beginning to affect the Brooklyn players and a sixth consecutive defeat in today's game—and their 13th loss in 17 starts against the Cubs this year—would be greatly accepted as evidence that the Robins have "cracked."

Manager Robinson refuses to believe his team has "cracked" and predicted that they would earn at least an even break in the series with the Cubs.

LINA BASQUETTE ATTEMPTS TO COMMIT SUICIDE

DESPAIRS OF EVER REGAINING CUSTODY OF HER 4-YEAR-OLD DAUGHTER

ACTRESS TAKES POISON AT HER HOME IN HOLLYWOOD

Hollywood, Aug. 13.—(UP)—Lina Basquette, screen star and formerly premier danseuse for Ziegfeld, attempted to commit suicide today because she despaired of ever regaining custody of her four-year-old daughter, Lita Warner.

The actress, widow of the late Sam Warner of Warner Brothers Productions, took poison at her home where she was entertaining a few friends.

She was rushed to a police hospital where antidotes were administered to save her life. Later, when her condition improved, she was permitted to go to her own residence under the care of her physician.

Miss Basquette told investigating officers that she became despondent when her attempts to have her child returned to her were futile. Young Lita, by an agreement with Miss Basquette, was given into custody of relatives of Sam Warner when the former New York dancer decided to remarry. "I'm sorry I did it," she told police. "It seems awfully silly, of course, but my heart was just breaking because of Lita."

DIRIGIBLE R-100 IS TO LEAVE FOR ENGLAND TONIGHT

REPAIRS ON FABRIC AND MOTORS OF BIG SHIP ARE COMPLETED

DAMAGE WAS LESS SERIOUS THAN BELIEVED ON FIRST EXAMINATION

St. Huberts Airdrome, Montreal, Aug. 13.—(UP)—The trans-Atlantic dirigible R-100 was prepared today for departure at 10 P. M. tonight on her return flight to England.

Repairs on the fabric and motors of the big ship which heralded establishment of dirigible communication between the distant parts of the British Empire were completed and passengers were ordered to be on board at 8 P. M. The damage was less serious than was first believed and required only slight repairs.

Definite plans for early establishment of a British-Canadian airship service across the Atlantic were under consideration of the government as the R-100 prepared to depart.

Sir Dennistoun Bournay, construction engineer of the dirigible, discussed the plans, which include the possible construction of a new type ship in Canada, with Premier R. B. Bennett at Ottawa yesterday.

Bournay considered his interview "most satisfactory" and said he would be ready to continue discussions with the British government when he returns to London.

Bournay proposed that the Canadian and British governments advance 75 per cent of the cost of constructing a new type of ship, twice the size of the R-100, which is the latest airship ever launched. Each government also would undertake contracts for transportation of six tons of mail per week at $5,000 per ton. Postal rates would be eight or ten cents per letter.

The service would be bi-weekly, with regular facilities in Canada for building airships for commercial companies.

Bournay said the project was assured of capital if the government co-operated.

Day After Day, as you turn the pages of this paper, you see the advertising of things you need. Food, clothing, home equipment . . . all the luxuries and necessities that go to make up the fullness of modern living.

Has it ever occurred to you to wonder just how far you could trust these advertisements as reliable guides to the selection of worthy products?

We can answer in one broad statement. Any product or service that you see consistently advertised in the pages of this publication is worthy in quality, honestly priced and truthfully presented.

Why? For the very simple reason that to the maker and the seller of an unworthy product, advertising presents the quickest and surest road to failure. To the misrepresented product, advertising brings a sudden and fatal storm of public disapproval. To the dishonest maker, advertising brings a constant public reminder of his dishonesty.

Truth in advertising has come to stay . . . its use is no longer dependent on the integrity of the advertiser, but on his business ability. Nothing else pays.

And, in addition, the publishers of your paper make every effort to disbar from these columns any advertising that might prove objectionable or unprofitable in any way to its readers.

COUNTY TAX LEVY FOR CURRENT YEAR FIXED

Commissioners Place Budget at $242,000, Reduction of $39,500 Under 1929

DROP IN "SAN" FUND

Payment of Bonds Makes Bond Sinking Fund Levy of $25,000 Unnecessary

The Board of County Commissioners in adjourned session adopted the following tax levy to defray the county's expenses for the ensuing year:

County Revenue Fund	$ 90,000.00
Road and Bridge Fund	100,000.00
Poor Fund	25,000.00
Sanatorium Fund	7,000.00
Interest Fund	10,000.00
Total	$242,000.00

The levy for the previous year amounted to $281,500.00 so it will be noted that the reduction this year is $39,500.00, a very substantial amount that will have the effect of reducing the county tax rate over 3 mills.

The greater portion of the reduction is accounted for from the fact that the bond sinking fund levy of $25,000.00 made in previous years is no longer necessary and there being a surplus in the Sanatorium Fund, a levy of $7,000.00 will suffice this year against a levy for the previous year of $12,500.00. Last year's interest levy of $20,000.00 was cut to $10,000.00 this year.

Continued adherence to the plan mapped out by the county officials in the past has made it possible to make this reduction in the tax levy and to pay the last of the County Bonds 2 years before payment was due.

STATE MATERIALS ARE PREFERRED

Among Home Products Used by Highway Department are Cement, Tile, Tar, Culverts, Snow Fences

Road work is not only furnishing employment directly to several thousand men in Minnesota this summer, but it is also providing work to many others in industries furnishing materials for highway construction and maintenance. Preference is given to Minnesota materials wherever possible, according to C. M. Babcock, commissioner of highways.

A great deal of the material used on the state highways, including cement for paving and most of the materials used by the maintenance division, is bought directly by the state. This is bought on competitive bids, and the law requires that the order be given to the lowest responsible bidder.

"If an outside firm has the low bid we must buy from them," Mr. Babcock points out. "This is not only good business policy, but if we should arbitrarily discriminate against outside firms, other states would soon retaliate, and Minnesota industries would suffer. There is probably a great deal more road material and machinery made in Minnesota and sold outside than we buy from other states."

"Where price and quality are the same, we naturally give preference to the home product. The home industry also has the advantage in freight rates on many articles, especially bulky materials. A few articles, which are not produced in Minnesota, must of course be bought elsewhere."

The department this year is using nearly 1,200,000 barrels of cement in its 280-mile paving program. Nearly two-thirds of this is made in Duluth. About one sixth is bought from a Minnesota firm which ships cement over the Great Lakes and maintains a large distributing plant in Minnesota. The remaining one-sixth comes from Iowa plants located near the Minnesota-Iowa line. Separate bids on cement are taken for each project, and freight rates constitute a large factor in prices at each point, plants close to the job having the advantage.

Previous to 1930, all road oil and tar came from outside the state. This year the department is using nearly 1,000,000 gallons of tar produced at a coke plant in St. Paul. This is about one-eighth of the oil and tar used on state roads.

All sand, gravel and crushed rock, both for paving and for road surfacing, come from Minnesota, except on one paving job near the Iowa line, where Iowa material is used.

The entire order of 500,000 feet of new snow fence bought this year is being made in Minnesota. All posts for the 60 miles of guard rail being built this year come from Minnesota forests.

All tile and concrete culverts and nearly all of the metal culverts are made in Minnesota. A large proportion of other materials, such as paints, road machinery, signs and markers, are made in the state.

PARTY FIND LAKES TO THEIR LIKING

Well Known Shoe Merchant of Chicago Tests Ability as Caster for Muskie and Bass

"It is an encouraging fact to know that the fishing resorts around Brainerd are becoming widely known and that the lakes are making a name for themselves because of their beauty and the many fish caught in them," George B. Laidlaw of Pittsburgh, summer resident of Brainerd, writes to the Dispatch.

"We not only have visitors from as far as Texas, Arizona, New York and California but have among them some of the country's most skillful anglers and artificial bait casters," he continued.

Recently a party headed by C. B. Hedstrom, well known shoe merchant of Chicago, visited the Brainerd lake region. Mr. Hedstrom praised the lakes and reported the catch of a number of fine Oswego green bass from Little Hubert Lake. Among the different lakes visited by Mr. Hedstrom and his party was Little Boy Lake, one of the Woman Lake chain 60 miles north of Brainerd.

Mr. Laidlaw accompanied the party which succeeded in landing a Rainbow Tiger Muskie.

The party left for Chicago after a delightful visit around Brainerd, well satisfied. They shipped 48 pounds of fish in two boxes and took with them an equal amount for their friends.

In commenting on the fishing trip Mr. Laidlaw said that Mr. Hedstrom was one of the keenest sportsmen among the fishing fraternity he had ever met.

"He would rather turn a fish loose no matter how close he came to the legal size then even be in doubt about it," Mr. Laidlaw writes. "Mr. Hedstrom knows just when to change baits and in what lake this or that lure will prove the most successful. He is an accurate caster and any Muskie once located deserves a medal if he escapes this man's unerring aim and skillful manipulation of the rod and reel."

The Chicago party expects to return for another fishing trip on September 15.

The levy for the previous year amounted to $281,500.00 so it will be noted that the reduction this year is $39,500.00, a very substantial amount that will have the effect of reducing the county tax rate over 3 mills.

The greater portion of the reduction is accounted for from the fact that the bond sinking fund levy of $25,000.00 made in previous years is no longer necessary and there being a surplus in the Sanatorium Fund, a levy of $7,000.00 will suffice this year against a levy for the previous year of $12,500.00. Last year's interest levy of $20,000.00 was cut to $10,000.00 this year.

Continued adherence to the plan mapped out by the county officials in the past has made it possible to make this reduction in the tax levy and to pay the last of the County Bonds 2 years before payment was due.

STATE MATERIALS ARE PREFERRED

Among Home Products Used by Highway Department are Cement, Tile, Tar, Culverts, Snow Fences

Road work is not only furnishing employment directly to several thousand men in Minnesota this summer, but it is also providing work to many others in industries furnishing materials for highway construction and maintenance. Preference is given to Minnesota materials wherever possible, according to C. M. Eabcock, commissioner of highways.

A great deal of the material used on the state highways, including cement for paving and most of the materials used by the maintenance division, is bought directly by the state. This is bought on competitive bids, and the law requires that the order be given to the lowest responsible bidder.

"If an outside firm has the low bid we must buy from them," Mr. Eabcock points out. "This is not only good business policy, but if we should arbitrarily discriminate against outside firms, other states would soon retaliate, and Minnesota industries would suffer. There is probably a great deal more road material and machinery made in Minnesota and sold outside than we buy from other states."

"Where price and quality are the same, we naturally give preference to the home product. The home industry also has the advantage in freight rates on many articles, especially bulky materials. A few articles, which are not produced in Minnesota, must of course be bought elsewhere."

The department this year is using nearly 1,200,000 barrels of cement in its 280-mile paving program. Nearly two-thirds of this is made in Duluth. About one-sixth is bought from a Minnesota firm which ships cement over the Great Lakes and maintains a large distributing plant in Minnesota. The remaining one-sixth comes from Iowa plants located near the Minnesota-Iowa line. Separate bids on cement are taken for each project, and freight rates constitute a large factor in prices at each point, plants close to the job having the advantage.

Previous to 1930, all road oil and tar came from outside the state. This year the department is using nearly 1,000,000 gallons of tar produced at a coke plant in St. Paul. This is about one-eighth of the oil and tar used on state roads.

All sand, gravel and crushed rock, both for paving and for road surfacing, come from Minnesota, except on one paving job near the Iowa line, where Iowa material is used.

The entire order of 500,000 feet of new snow fence bought this year is being made in Minnesota. All posts for the 60 miles of guard rail being built this year come from Minnesota forests.

All tile and concrete culverts and nearly all of the metal culverts are made in Minnesota. A large proportion of other materials, such as paints, road machinery, signs and markers, are made in the state.

PARTY FIND LAKES TO THEIR LIKING

Well Known Shoe Merchant of Chicago Tests Ability as Caster for Muskie and Bass

"It is an encouraging fact to know that the fishing resorts around Brainerd are becoming widely known and that the lakes are making a name for themselves because of their beauty and the many fish caught in them," George B. Laidlaw of Pittsburgh, summer resident of Brainerd, writes to the Dispatch.

"We not only have visitors from as far as Texas, Arizona, New York and California but have among them some of the country's most skillful anglers and artificial bait casters," he continued.

Recently a party headed by C. B. Hedstrom, well known shoe merchant of Chicago, visited the Brainerd lake region. Mr. Hedstrom praised the lakes and reported the catch of a number of fine Oswego green bass from Little Hubert Lake. Among the different lakes visited by Mr. Hedstrom and his party was Little Boy Lake, one of the Woman Lake chain 60 miles north of Brainerd.

Mr. Laidlaw, accompanied the party which succeeded in landing a Rainbow Tiger Muskie.

The party left for Chicago after a delightful visit around Brainerd, well satisfied. They shipped 48 pounds of fish in two boxes and took with them an equal amount for their friends.

In commenting on the fishing trip Mr. Laidlaw said that Mr. Hedstrom was one of the keenest sportsmen among the fishing fraternity he had ever met.

"He would rather turn a fish loose no matter how close he came to the legal size then even be in doubt about it," Mr. Laidlaw writes. "Mr. Hedstrom knows just when to change bait and in what lake this or that lure will prove the most successful. He is an accurate caster and any Muskie once located deserves a medal if he escapes this man's unerring aim and skillful manipulation of the rod and reel."

The Chicago party expects to return for another fishing trip on September 15.

TONG WAR IN MINNEAPOLIS IS BLAZING ANEW

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 13.—(U.P.)—The Chinese tong war was too much for the police today. Pong Hoi, Hip Sing laundryman shot in the leg by "hatchet men" is in the hospital. Police led seven suspects before him. "Is this the man?" they asked each time. "Yes, he's the man," said Toy as each suspect came to his bedside. So Chief of Police Harry S. Lindholm called in Hip Sing and On Leong leaders and told them that if there was any more trouble every Chinese place in the city would be locked up.

"Cannel" or "Candle"? Cannel coal burns with a bright, candlelike flame, and it is probable that the name is a corruption of candle coal. This coal is found in Kentucky, Ohio and Indiana, and some believe that it is a product of an accumulation of animal as well as plant remains. The same kind of coal is found in Scotland, where it is called parrot coal.

Tennis Ball Calls Firemen

While players were enjoying an exciting tennis game in a covered court at Essen, Germany, recently, play was suddenly stopped when firemen appeared and asked where was the fire. A ball hit by one of the players had, unnoticed, struck and broken the glass of a fire alarm box, which turned in the alarm.

Effectively Stirred Up His Sleepy Listeners

A noted writer was talking about the success of a trashy and sensational novel. "This novel," he said, "reminds me of a preacher. He was preaching away, proclaiming eternal truths, one somnolent summer morning, and in the heat his congregation drowsed. "Suddenly he paused. He glared down at all those nodding heads. Then he resumed in a loud voice:

"I was walking down Green lane last Thursday and in Farmer Cornelius Husk's barnyard I saw a strange sight. Yes, I saw a large sow suckling a litter of ten little pigs, and the sow and each little pig had a long horn growing out of the forehead between the ears." "The preacher paused again. He glared down at his congregation again. They were all wide awake now. They all gazed up at him with wide-eyed interest.

"Aha!" he said bitterly. 'A while ago, when I was telling you eternal truths, you went to sleep; but now, when I tell you a pack of silly lies, look how wide awake and interested you are!'"

The peninsula of Jutland embraces the area between the Skagerrak, the North sea, and the Cattegat and has an area of approximately 9,750 square miles. The peninsula takes its name from the Jutes, an ancient people who once inhabited it. It was in May, 1916, that the famous naval battle of Jutland between the allied and German fleets was fought off the western coast of the peninsula.

The Initials in Her Ring

By L. E. ANDREWS

AS ELEANOR HUSTON hurried out of the employee's entrance of Dunlap's Department store, she hoped that Ted Nellan wouldn't be waiting for her. But there he was. His taxicab shone with new varnish, and his face shone with good nature. "Oh, Ted, I'd just as lief walk home tonight!" she demurred. "Walk!" Ted grinned. "After standing on your feet behind a glove counter all day? Not much, Little Girl! Hop in. We'll stop in the park a few minutes, if you want to get a breath of fresh air."

Eleanor's heart sank until it seemed to locate itself somewhere in the very toes of her pretty slippers. It was going to be hard to tell Ted the truth.

A little unconscious sigh wearily escaped her, as she sank into the seat beside Ted. She kept her left hand carefully concealed lest Ted should see the square little bulge on her gloved third finger.

At the entrance to the park, Ted smiled at her. "Everybody's gone home to supper," he chuckled. "We'll have the whole place to ourselves. A fellow surely likes to be alone with his best girl when he proposes to her."

Eleanor's heart gave a convulsive bound. Once she had looked eagerly forward to this moment. Now she felt sick and frightened. Ted's arms went about her. She pushed him away wildly.

"Don't, Ted, don't!" she begged piteously. "I can't bear it—now!" "Why, Eleanor?" Ted's tone was tenderly reproachful. "I've waited weeks to ask you to marry me. I can't keep it in any longer. I've saved enough so we can have our own little apartment. No more working in an old store for Mrs. Ted Nellan."

Eleanor felt as if she were suffocating. "Oh, Ted, I've got to tell you!" she gasped. "I—I've promised to marry another man."

She drew off her glove with a quick twitch. On her slim white finger shone a great emerald.

"Eleanor, whoever the fellow is, he must be a millionaire to afford such a ring as that," he told her. The color was coming back into Eleanor's delicate face. "He is a millionaire," she asserted. "He came into the store one day to buy some gloves for his sister. He—he says he just fell in love with me then."

"Can I ask this guy's name?" Ted's voice was gruff, as if he were trying to keep it from shaking.

"His name is Harold Le Farge, and he's a relative of the Eastern Le Farge family. They made their money in coal, you know."

Ted swallowed hard. "Eleanor, do you love him?" he asked softly.

Eleanor flinched, as if he had struck her. She thought that she knew Ted Nellan, but the strange caressing note in his voice thrilled her through and through. "I—I don't know," she faltered. "But he's handsome and he has a way. And I've promised to marry him."

Without another word, Ted turned the cab about. His face was white.

"Goodbye, Eleanor," he said, as he left her at the door of her shabby little boarding house.

Eleanor mounted the stairs to her tiny hall bedroom and threw herself on her bed. "Oh, Ted, you're a darling!" she sobbed. "I wish I hadn't been so hasty."

To relieve her mind, she tried to think of the handsome glib-tongued man she had promised to marry. Once more she looked at the emerald on her finger. Its deep green light fascinated her.

"A girl can't wait forever for a man to propose," she muttered. "And Harold can give me what Ted never can."

Slipping the ring off, Eleanor held it up to the light. "H. L. F. to E. M. H.," she read. But there was something else there, a faint lettering she had not noticed before. Nervously she turned it about. There was an abraded place. The electric light picked it out, shone on the dim engraving with almost X-ray clearness. A cold chill passed over her.

"J. M. C. to C. D. M.," she whispered faintly. "Joseph M. Cline! The Cline emeralds were stolen more than a year ago, and advertised from coast to coast. I won't believe this is one of them; I won't! Harold wouldn't steal."

A small voice refused to be stilled. "What do you know of Harold?" it asked, deep in her heart. "What do you really know of him?"

A host of little things suddenly stood out in her mind. Harold's evasiveness, his mysterious absences from town. Conviction gripped Eleanor. She snatched her hat and coat. She was going to Ted. Ted would know what to do!

It was nearly midnight when Ted and Eleanor again stopped in the park. The big emerald had been promptly claimed by a member of the Cline family, and "Harold" was in the custody of the police. Eleanor shuddered, when she thought of him.

"Oh, Ted, suppose—suppose I'd married a thief!" she cried.

Ted chuckled. "Would you rather marry a poor but honest taxicab driver?" he inquired. "If you would, I'll give you another ring with the right initials inside of it."

Eleanor's head went down on his shoulder. "You can buy that ring right away," she told him blissfully.

Musical Seals

Some twenty miles up the Koettlitz glacier, we were surprised to find many seals, and came to the conclusion that they swam up the subglacial stream which I named the Alph river. On one occasion I prodded one of these seals with my ice ax. After some sneezes and grumbles he proceeded to sing to me. He lay over on his side and produced a whole octave of musical notes from his chest, ranging up to a canary-like chirrup. Later I found that Doctor Wilson and Doctor Racovitz had already recorded the musical ability of Antarctic seals.—From "Antarctic Adventure and Research," by Griffith Taylor.

Reverse English

A Tyneside shipbuilder, anxious that his son should learn how to pronounce English in the beautiful way that his legal adviser, a Londoner, spoke it, apprenticed his lad to work in the lawyer's office so that he might learn English as it was then pronounced in London, smiles Dr. Frank H. Vizetelly, noted lexicographer. The son spent two years in his clerical position before the father was able to come to town on a visit. Then he called on the lawyer and asked about the boy. Much to his amazement the lawyer replied in Tyneside English, which the youngster had been able to teach him without assimilating any of the cockney dialect.

Efficiency

Some time ago a section foreman was severely criticized by the road-master for the careless handling of track material for his men.

"For instance," said he, "a few days ago one of your men was seen to thoughtlessly throw a spike into the weeds. Don't you realize they cost money?"

"I know they do," returned the foreman, "I had my men spend three days looking for that spike."—R. R. Magazine.

HITCH REALTY COMPANY 200 1/2 South Sixth Street

"WHERE'S EMILY?" by CAROLYN WELLS

CHAPTER XXXIX.

"NOT so deep as the big ravine," he said, "but a long enough fall to kill anybody. I see they've fixed up the vines."

"Yes, the Village Improvement Society looked after that as soon as the police allowed it. Now," as Stone started on again, "there's the Pennington house."

"Where?"

"Look higher up. See, you can just see the roof through the trees."

"Gracious, I shouldn't want to live there. Why don't they cut out enough to make a clearing?"

"It doesn't seem quite so treacherous when you get up to it," volunteered Betty. "Want to go up?"

"Can't see any reason for it," Stone said, looking at his watch. "Guess we'd better be about our business. Where's the hospital?"

It was pointed out to him, but he took slight interest.

"What I want now," he said, "is to have you take me to call briefly on two or three of the most knowing people in Hildale, I mean the ones who know most about gossip going on, and include, if you please, the lady who was last at the tea—Mrs. Marsden, is the name?"

"All right," Betty chirped, feeling that this was her chance. "I'll know where to go, Pete. Not the Stevensons, not the Ballards. The Marsdens come first, and then Sally Kirke's and Jane Wolcott's."

"Good choice," Pete approved. "Marsdens it is."

They went to the Marsden house, another large, beautiful mansion, and were received most kindly.

Mrs. Marsden, an elderly dame, was disinclined to talk much, but her niece a vivacious young person more than made up for it.

"Isn't it just too terrible?" Miss Marsden exclaimed. "To think of Emily and Pauline both being there with us at the tea, and now—where are they?"

Her dramatic rendition of these words was accompanied by eloquent gestures of despairing inquiry.

Fleming Stone gave her no direct answer, but said: "That's what we're trying to learn, Miss Marsden. Maybe you can help us. Have you a good memory?"

"Fine," she declared. "Why, Auntie says I can remember—"

Stone cut short her reminiscences, not rudely, but decidedly. "Then, please see if you can remember the exact happenings of your departure from Knollwood after the tea there last Thursday."

"Of course I can; I've often thought it over. It seems so strange—"

off toward Wallace's and Mrs. Pennington kept straight on. She came to the bridge over the little ravine, and she stopped and stood there, as if she was waiting for her husband. So, we passed her there. I was going to speak to her, but she was leaning over the rail, and she didn't look up or turn around, so I didn't think I'd better speak. I didn't know her so awfully well. So, we went on, and, of course, I thought no more about it then. We turned at the bend, and I couldn't see her any more, and I didn't look back any way. I simply assumed that she waited for her husband and they went on home together. That's all I know about it."

"Thank you, Miss Marsden, you've stated it very clearly. And you saw nothing of Miss Duane?"

"Nothing at all."

"You don't know whether Mrs. Pennington had on a fur neck-piece or not?"

"I couldn't swear to that. I think she had nothing of the sort, anyway not around her neck. But she might have had one in her hand."

"You've told this story before?"

"Oh, Lord, yes. Every member of the police force wanted to hear

Mrs. Marsden, an elderly dame, was disinclined to talk much, but her niece more than made up for it.

it, so I've told it over and over again. But always the same. I'm sure of my facts, and I saw everything just exactly as I've described it, and I saw nothing more."

"If Miss Duane had been ahead of you and your aunt, would you not have seen her as you turned the bend in the road, after passing Mrs. Pennington?"

"Why, yes, probably. I never thought of that. Still, it was getting dark and I might not—"

"Dark at five o'clock?"

"Yes, it was that day. It was very cloudy, and we thought a thunderstorm was coming up, but it went around to the north, as they so often do."

"Now for the gossipiest tongue in all Hildale."

"Follow me," said Betty, importantly, and she led them to Sally Kirke's charming cottage.

Smaller than most of the houses, it was a love of a bijou residence, and again Stone found his sense of aesthetic values gratified by the exquisite interior of Miss Kirke's home.

She was a bachelor girl, living with a duenna, which fully satisfied Hildale's requirements of propriety, and she prided herself on being afraid of nobody's opinion. She said what she chose and did what she chose, regardless of social comment, and so greatly did she possess the superior complex that she managed to remain top of the heap, above and beyond criticism.

TONG WAR IN MINNEAPOLIS IS BLAZING ANEW

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 13.—(U.P.)—The Chinese tong war was too much for the police today. Fong Hoy, Sing Sing laundryman shot in the leg by "hatchet men" is in the hospital. Police led seven suspects before him. "Is this the man?" they asked each time. "Yes, he's the man," said Toy as each suspect came to his bedside. So Chief of Police Harry S. Lindholm called in Hip Sing and On Leong leaders and told them that if there was any more trouble every Chinese place in the city would be locked up.

BANK CONSOLIDATION AT FRAZEE TODAY

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 13.—(U.P.)—The Security State Bank of Frazee was taken over today by the First National Bank of Frazee, A. J. Veigel, state banking commissioner, reported.

"Cannel" or "Candle"? Cannel coal burns with a bright, candlelike flame, and it is probable that the name is a corruption of candle coal. This coal is found in Kentucky, Ohio and Indiana, and some believe that it is a product of an accumulation of animal as well as plant remains. The same kind of coal is found in Scotland, where it is called parrot coal.

Pocket Gopher's "Purse" The pocket gopher has large cheek pouches which do not communicate with the mouth and are lined on the inside with fur. The gopher uses these pouches not for carrying dirt but for the conveyance of food supplies.

Tennis Ball Calls Firemen

While players were enjoying an exciting tennis game in a covered court at Essen, Germany, recently, play was suddenly stopped when firemen appeared and asked where was the fire. A ball hit by one of the players had, unnoticed, struck and broken the glass of a fire alarm box, which turned in the alarm.

Effectively Stirred Up His Sleepy Listeners

A noted writer was talking about the success of a trashy and sensational novel.
"This novel," he said, "reminds me of a preacher. He was preaching away, proclaiming eternal truths, one somnolent summer morning, and in the heat his congregation dozed."
"Suddenly he paused. He glared down at all those nodding heads. Then he resumed in a loud voice:
"I was walking down Green lane last Thursday and in Farmer Cornelius Husk's barnyard I saw a strange sight. Yes, I saw a large sow suckling a litter of ten little pigs, and the sow and each little pig had a long horn growing out of the forehead of the ears."
"The preacher paused again. He glared down at his congregation again. They were all wide awake now. They all gazed up at him with wide-eyed interest.
"Aha!" he said bitterly. "A while ago, when I was telling you eternal truths, you went to sleep; but now, when I tell you a pack of silly lies, look how wide awake and interested you are!"

Saw Great Naval Battle

The peninsula of Jutland embraces the area between the Skagerrak, the North sea, and the Kattegat and has an area of approximately 9,750 square miles. The peninsula takes its name from the Jutes, an ancient people who once inhabited it. It was in May, 1916, that the famous naval battle of Jutland between the allied and German fleets was fought off the western coast of the peninsula.

The Initials in Her Ring

By L. E. ANDREWS

AS ELEANOR HUSTON hurried out of the employee's entrance of Dunlap's Department store, she hoped that Ted Neelan wouldn't be waiting for her. But there he was. His taxicab shone with new varnish, and his face shone with good nature.
"Oh, Ted, I'd just as lief walk home tonight!" she demurred.
"Walk!" Ted grinned. "After standing on your feet behind a glove counter all day? Not much, Little Girl! Hop in. We'll stop in the park a few minutes, if you want to get a breath of fresh air."
Eleanor's heart sank until it seemed to locate itself somewhere in the very toes of her pretty slippers. It was going to be hard to tell Ted the truth.
A little unconscious sigh wearily escaped her, as she sank into the seat beside Ted. She kept her left hand carefully concealed lest Ted should see the square little bulge on her gloved third finger.
At the entrance to the park, Ted smiled at her. "Everybody's gone home to supper," he chuckled. "We'll have the whole place to ourselves. A fellow surely likes to be alone with his best girl when he proposes to her."
Eleanor's heart gave a convulsive bound. Once she had looked eagerly forward to this moment. Now she felt sick and frightened. Ted's arms went about her. She pushed him away wildly.
"Don't, Ted, don't!" she begged piteously. "I can't bear it—now!"
"Why, Eleanor?" Ted's tone was tenderly reproachful. "I've waited weeks to ask you to marry me. I can't keep it in any longer. I've saved enough so we can have our own little apartment. No more working in an old store for Mrs. Ted Neelan."
Eleanor felt as if she were suffocating. "Oh, Ted, I've got to tell you!" she gasped. "I—I've promised to marry another man."
She drew off her glove with a quick twitch. On her slim white finger shone a great emerald.
"Eleanor, whoever the fellow is, he must be a millionaire to afford such a ring as that," he told her.
The color was coming back into Eleanor's delicate face. "He is a millionaire," she asserted. "He came into the store one day to buy some gloves for his sister. He—he says he just fell in love with me then."
"Can I ask this guy's name?" Ted's voice was gruff, as if he were trying to keep it from shaking.
"His name is Harold Le Farge, and he's a relative of the Eastern Le Farge family. They made their money in coal, you know."
Ted swallowed hard. "Eleanor, do you love him?" he asked softly.
Eleanor flinched, as if he had struck her. She thought that she knew Ted Neelan, but the strange caressing note in his voice thrilled her through and through. "I—I don't know," she faltered. "But he's handsome and he has a way. And I've promised to marry him."
Without another word, Ted turned the cab about. His face was white.
"Goodbye, Eleanor," he said, as he left her at the door of her shabby little boarding house.
Eleanor mounted the stairs to her tiny hall bedroom and threw herself on her bed. "Oh, Ted, you're a darling!" she sobbed. "I wish I hadn't been so hasty."
To relieve her mind, she tried to think of the handsome glib-tongued man she had promised to marry. Once more she looked at the emerald on her finger. Its deep green light fascinated her.
"A girl can't wait forever for a man to propose," she muttered. "And Harold can give me what Ted never can."
Slipping the ring off, Eleanor held it up to the light. "H. L. F. to E. M. H.," she read. But there was something else there, a faint lettering she had not noticed before. Nervously she turned it about. There was an abraded plate. The electric light picked it out, shone on the dim engraving with almost X-ray clearness. A cold chill passed over her.
"J. M. C. to C. D. M.," she whispered faintly. "Joseph M. Cline! The Cline emeralds were stolen more than a year ago, and advertised from coast to coast. I won't believe this is one of them; I won't! Harold wouldn't steal."
A small voice refused to be still. "What do you know of Harold?" it asked, deep in her heart. "What do you really know of him?"
A host of little things suddenly stood out in her mind. Harold's evasiveness, his mysterious absences from town. Conviction gripped Eleanor. She snatched her hat and coat. She was going to Ted. Ted would know what to do!

It was nearly midnight when Ted and Eleanor again stopped in the park. The big emerald had been promptly claimed by a member of the Cline family, and "Harold" was in the custody of the police. Eleanor shuddered, when she thought of him.
"Oh, Ted, suppose—suppose I'd married a thief!" she cried.
Ted chuckled. "Would you rather marry a poor but honest taxicab driver?" he inquired. "If you would, I'll give you another ring with the right initials inside of it."
Eleanor's head went down on his shoulder. "You can buy that ring right away," she told him blissfully.

Some twenty miles up the Kootenitz glacier, we were surprised to find many seals, and came to the conclusion that they swam up the subglacial stream which I named the Alph river. On one occasion I prodded one of these seals with my ice ax. After some sneezes and grumbles he proceeded to sing to me. He lay over on his side and produced a whole octave of musical notes from his chest, ranging up to a canary-like chirrup. Later I found that Doctor Wilson and Doctor Racovitz had already recorded the musical ability of Antarctic seals.—From "Antarctic Adventure and Research," by Griffith Taylor.

Reverse English

A Tyneside shipbuilder, anxious that his son should learn how to pronounce English in the beautiful way that his legal adviser, a Londoner, spoke it, apprenticed his lad to work in the lawyer's office so that he might learn English as it was then pronounced in London, smiles Dr. Frank H. Vizetelly, noted lexicographer. The son spent two years in his clerical position before the father was able to come to town on a visit. Then he called on the lawyer and asked about the boy. Much to his amazement the lawyer replied in Tyneside English, which the youngster had been able to teach him without assimilating any of the cockney dialect.

Efficiency

Some time ago a section foreman was severely criticized by the road-master for the careless handling of truck material for his men.
"For instance," said he, "a few days ago one of your men was seen to thoughtlessly throw a spike into the weeds. Don't you realize they cost money?"
"I know they do," returned the foreman. "I had my men spend three days looking for that spike."—R. R. Magazine.

The Right Number

Little Alene, four years old, overheard her mother tell some one on the telephone that he had the wrong number and could get the right number by calling the operator again.
A little later Alene was heard talking over her toy telephone and saying, "This is the right number. If you want the wrong number you will have to call somebody else."

"WHERE'S EMILY?" by CAROLYN WELLS

CHAPTER XXXIX.

"NOT so deep as the big ravine," he said, "but a long enough fall to kill anybody. I see they've fixed up the vines."
"Yes, the Village Improvement Society looked after that as soon as the police allowed it. Now," as Stone started on again, "there's the Pennington house."
"Where?"
"Look higher up. See, you can just see the roof through the trees."
"Gracious, I shouldn't want to live there. Why don't they cut out enough to make a clearing?"
"It doesn't seem quite so treacherous when you get up to it," volunteered Betty. "Want to go up?"
"Can't see any reason for it," Stone said, looking at his watch. "Guess we'd better be about our business. Where's the hospital?"
It was pointed out to him, but he took slight interest.
"What I want now," he said, "is to have you take me to call briefly on two or three of the most knowing people in Hilldale, I mean the ones who know most about gossip going on, and include, if you please, the lady who was last at the tea—Marsden, is the name?"
"All right," Betty chirped, feeling that this was her chance. "I'll know where to go. Pete. Not the Stevensons, not the Ballards. The Marsdens' come first, and then Sally Kirke's and Jane Wolcott's."
"Good choice," Pete approved. "Marsden's it is."
They went to the Marsden house, another large, beautiful mansion, and were received most kindly.
Mrs. Marsden, an elderly dame, was disinclined to talk much, but her niece a vivacious young person more than made up for it.
"Isn't it just too terrible?" Miss Marsden exclaimed. "To think of Emily and Pauline both being there with us at the tea, and now—where are they?"
Her dramatic rendition of these words was accompanied by eloquent gestures of despairing inquiry.
Fleming Stone gave her no direct answer, but said:
"That's what we're trying to learn, Miss Marsden. Maybe you can help us. Have you a good memory?"
"Fine," she declared. "Why, Auntie says I can remember—"
Stone cut short her reminiscences, not rudely, but decidedly. "Then, please see if you can remember the exact happenings of your departure from Knollwood after the tea there last Thursday."
"Of course I can; I've often thought it over. It seems so strange—"
"Tell it, just as it happened."
"Why, it was this way. I don't know anything about time, for I never do. But Auntie and I were waiting to shake hands and say good-by to Mrs. Bell. We had already told Emily we were going. The affair was informal, you know, but we always are careful to be polite to Mrs. Bell. She's such a dear. Well, we were about the last ones. Just ahead of us the Penningtons were saying good-by. As soon as they turned away from Mrs. Bell, Auntie and I stepped up to her and told her what a nice time we'd had, and all that, and then we came away. The Penningtons were just in front of us, but not quite within speaking distance. Anyway, we didn't speak to them. They went on till they came to the place where the street goes off to Wallace's, and then they stood still and said a few words—I didn't hear, of course—and then Mr. Pennington turned off toward Wallace's and Mrs. Pennington kept straight on. She came to the bridge over the little ravine, and she stopped and stood there, as if she was waiting for her husband. So, we passed her there. I was going to speak to her, but she was leaning over the rail, and she didn't look up or turn around, so I didn't think I'd better speak. I didn't know her so awfully well. So, we went on, and of course, I thought no more about it then. We turned at the bend, and I couldn't see her any more, and I didn't look back any way. I simply assumed that she waited for her husband and they went on home together. That's all I know about it."

"Thank you, Miss Marsden, you've stated it very clearly. And you saw nothing of Miss Duane?"
"Nothing at all."
"You don't know whether Mrs. Pennington had on a fur neck-piece or not?"
"I couldn't swear to that. I think she had nothing of the sort, anyway not around her neck. But she might have had one in her hand."
"You've told this story before?"
"Oh, Lord, yes. Every member of the police force wanted to hear

Mrs. Marsden, an elderly dame, was disinclined to talk much, but her niece more than made up for it.

it, so I've told it over and over again. But always the same. I'm sure of my facts, and I saw everything just exactly as I've described it, and I saw nothing more."
"If Miss Duane had been ahead of you and your aunt, would you not have seen her as you turned the bend in the road, after passing Mrs. Pennington?"
"Why, yes, probably. I never thought of that. Still, it was getting dark and I might not—"
"Dark at five o'clock?"
"Yes, it was that day. It was very cloudy, and we thought a thunderstorm was coming up, but it went around to the north, as they so often do."
"Miss Marsden, what is your opinion of the Hindu, Lal Singh?"
"If there was one thing Cora Marsden loved better than another, it was to express her opinions of net," Stone murmured in reply. "Now for the gossipiest tongue in all Hilldale."

"Follow me," said Betty, importantly, and she led them to Sally Kirke's charming cottage.
Smaller than most of the houses, it was a love of a bijou residence, and again Stone found his sense of aesthetic values gratified by the exquisite interior of Miss Kirke's home.
She was a bachelor girl, living with a duenna, which fully satisfied Hilldale's requirements of propriety, and she prided herself on being afraid of nobody's opinion. She said what she chose and did what she chose, regardless of social comment, and so greatly did she possess the superior complex that she managed to remain top of the heap, above and beyond criticism.
